High-temperature resistant adhesive and sealant

Weicon Flex 310 M HT 220+

Weicon, manufacturer of special chemical products, has developed an adhesive and sealant that is suitable for high-temperature areas and applications – Weicon Flex 310 M HT 220+.

Designed for high temperatures

This newly developed adhesive closes a gap in the field of elastic adhesives and sealants for bonding applications in which components are thermally coated at higher temperatures.

The 1-component SMP-based adhesive and sealant is high-temperature resistant, fast-curing and elastic and is suitable for tolerance-compensating bonding work. Flex 310 M HT 220+ has a viscoplastic texture and a very fast strength build-up. It has good initial adhesion, is moisture-hardening and neutral-curing. Once fully cured, the adhesive and sealant can be exposed to temperatures of up to +220 °C for approx. 30 minutes and up to +90 °C permanently.

It adheres to a wide variety of surfaces and is highly resistant to weathering and ageing. Flex 310 M HT 220+ is free from solvents, halogens, silicone and isocyanate.

For various industrial sectors

WEICON Flex 310 M HT 220+ can be used in metal construction, tank and apparatus engineering, in ventilation and air conditioning systems, in car body, container, wagon and vehicle construction.
